survive—and to reunite—We Were the Lucky Ones is a tribute to the triumph of hope and love against all odds. “Love in the face of global adversity? It couldn’t be more timely.” “Glamour It is the spring of 1939 and three generations of the Kurc family are doing their best to live normal lives, even as the shadow of war grows closer. The talk around the family Seder table is of new babies and budding romance, not of the increasing hardships threatening Jews in their hometown of Radom, Poland. But soon the horrors overtaking Europe will become inescapable and the Kurcs will be flung to the far corners of the world, each desperately trying to navigate his or her own path to safety. As one sibling is forced into exile, another attempts to flee the continent, while others struggle to escape certain death, either by working grueling hours on empty stomachs in the factories of the ghetto or by hiding as gentiles in plain sight. Driven by an unwavering will to survive and by the fear that they may never see one another again, the Kurcs must rely on hope, ingenuity, and inner strength to persevere. An extraordinary, propulsive novel, We Were the Lucky Ones demonstrates how in the face of the twentieth century’s darkest moment, the human spirit can endure and even thrive.

16 year old Grace Wethor brings levity and a fresh young eye to the twists and turns of modern cancer survival through poems, art, excerpts and chapter takeovers from other survivors in this exhilarating debut book. "A lot of people tell me "you're so lucky" after they hear my story. Well okay, first they say "OMG, I'm so sorry" and then they say "you're so lucky." But what is luck anyways? Would you have told me I was lucky three years ago when I was literally given a death sentence?"

In the 1970s, Cassie comes of age struggling with the loss of two father figures in her life--her drunken father whom her mother divorces, and her stepfather, who is diagnosed with cancer.

It's been a year and a half since Linda, Michael and Jack moved into the Middle Ages just south of Paris, France. Frenchmen are the nicest, rudest, most independent, sheepish, backward, advanced, educated illiterates living with one foot firmly in 1800 (Napoleon before Waterloo) and the other in 1980 (the Concorde SST). It's December 1971. So begins Jack Pendray's fun and funny tradition of penning an annual Christmas letter to friends and family. Spanning five decades, these Christmas letters are a sometimes hilarious look at a typical American family, documenting stories of a loving marriage, busy children, loyal friends, faithful dogs, and an exciting professional career that entailed moving from house to house, place to place, country to country. Each letter comes complete with a group photo illustrating the heartfelt love of the entire Pendray family towards one another. Interspersed with the Christmas letters are autobiographical reminiscences by Jack that anchor him firmly in a very specific time and place in American history: a happy but shy member of Ching Tang fraternity at Coral Gables High; a hard-partying Sigma Nu engineering standout at UF; an officer in the Air Force studying for his advanced degree from Stanford in a brand spanking new industry: computers. It was Jack's computer expertise that would take the Pendrays from the Pentagon to Paris, from the States to Australia, allowing him to be among the earliest of "road warriors" in the skies. Join Jack Pendray as he offers a lighthearted glimpse into his life and the life of his family in 50 Years of Christmas Letters: The Life and Times of a Lucky Man—lighthearted, yes, but always humble, because Jack Pendray is the first to acknowledge that he is, indeed, a lucky man.
